

About the ABC

The American Biogas Council represents a full range of renewable biogas and anaerobic digestion interests including manufacturers, engineering firms, feasibility firms, project developers, legal firms, education organizations, utilities, financiers and local and regional government.

We are the advocate for building the business for biogas in the U.S. Current activities are focused in three areas:

Representing Industry to Government

ABC supports public policies that focus on:

- Increasing project funding from federal sources for anaerobic digester equipment
- Establishing tax credits for the production, sale or use of biogas
- Qualifying biogas for renewable energy
- Broadening the definition of renewable energy standards to include energy generated from biogas
- Increasing the exposure of biogas/AD by engaging key federal and state agencies

ABC develops strategic guidance for industry and policy makers that articulates the benefits and promotes the use of anaerobic digestion and biogas production. A member-led Legislative and Regulatory Affairs Committee (LRA) guides the organization's efforts in this area.

Increasing Biogas Awareness

Education and outreach activities are focused on building widespread awareness of biogas and its benefits. Target audiences include government and policy leaders, media, the general public, and other industry stakeholders.

Broadening the Reach of Biogas and Our Members

Our member-led membership and fundraising committee is determined to add prominent industry leaders to our membership database and raise additional resources to aid in accomplishing the other committees' missions and strengthening our members' contacts.
